THREE WEEKS LATER FROM CALIFORNIA.

ARRIVAL OF THE QUAKER CITY.

The Story of the Wreck of Havanah.

$1,000,000 EN ROUTE FOR NEW-YORK.

NEWS FROM HAVANA.

The steamship Quaker City, Captain Shortridge, from Realejo the 5th and Havana at 5 P. M. on the 26th, arrived here yesterday afternoon, after dispatches the latter port.

The Quaker City made the run from Realejo Bay in Seventy-six hours.

From Havana there is nothing of interest to report. The steamer Isabel of Cuba, which was the subject of the wreck, was still there. The Havana papers contain no news of importance.

The Mexican Indians in Arizona had chastised the Tucsons and Apaches, for killing some of their women and children. The Pimos killed 150, or 160 of their opponents and lost only 30 themselves.

The route of the escort of the Carson Valley to Utah is confirmed, and the ridiculous report that a battle had occurred between the United States troops and the Mormons at Salt Lake City contradicted.

The crop of cereal cotton in California will be largely afloat of the cultivation.

It was said that the overland mail route from San Diego to San Antonio, Texas, would take passengers on its trip of Oct. 9.

The news of the commencement of the panic in New-York did not create much surprise in California.

Mining returns since the departure of the previous steamers are represented as very discouraging. Quartz operations have taken a new start, owing to some rich discoveries which have been made recently in different portions of the State.

The Union Democrat, published at Sonora, has the following notice of quartz operations in that vicinity:

This locality bids fair to be even one of the most important mining districts in the country. Tuttle, Hale & Co. have made Angels in Calaveras, one of the most flourishing of the inland towns, will enrich, and improve not only Tuttletown, but Sonora and Columbia and all Tuolumne County. We allude to quartz resources. Without a doubt the quartz claims in this neighborhood are the richest in the country, and the only, or few, instances in which quartz mills have been successful are the richest in the country. We have heard of a number of quartz mills being put up, but consider them of little importance in comparison to the mills in which the rock of Tuttletown is worked. Every one has heard of the Mariposa lead, as many suppose, but is ignorant of it under the name called, we believe, calc. This is a stratum of quartz formation, thickly interspersed with veins of gold. The Tuttletown quartz is quite different from the "Mariposa" lead, is of almost fabulous richness. The owners now ship it to England, where the gold is extracted. One ton sent there yielded the immense sum of seventeen hundred and twenty-two ounces of gold. It is well known that this lead traverses the length of the State, following the run of the large "Carson Creek" quartz vein.

"We were presented a few days since with a piece of specimen dirt from the Nebraska shaft owned by the Messrs. DAWLEY, MILLS & Co. It is exceedingly rich. There has been taken from the claims more than $60,000 already, and the prospects are now richer than ever before. One engine has been at work upon the ground in the past, and another is in process of erection. For the ten months past the company has been cutting through the rocks."

IMPORTANT FROM CARSON VALLEY.

The Mormons of this settlement were to start for Zion on the 25th of October. There would be upwards of 200 wagons, a portion of which are ordered to emigrate to Salmon River, and the balance to Salt Lake City. BRIGHAM YOUNG has ordered a secret cavalry company to organize from the Saints in Carson Valley, armed and equipped, with one year's provisions and clothing. It is the intention of the Mormons, if matters get too serious, to seek a refuge in the Russian Possessions, where they have already driven the stakes for a new Zion.

OREGON AND WASHINGTON TERRITORIES.

The State Convention, which has been engaged for several weeks in framing a State Constitution for Oregon, was still in session. There has been no determinate conclusion arrived at, as yet, in regard to the subject of Slavery, though the prospect is that it will not be incorporated into the fundamental law.

"The Convention to frame a State Constitution for Oregon, now in session at Salem, was slowly proceeding in its labors at last accounts, but its acts were not distinguished by harmony of feeling and action. The Slavery question, which it was thought would be so quietly disposed of, from the supposed overwhelming preponderance of the Anti-Slavery sentiment, is the cause of no little discord, and instead of receiving guidance from Constitutions that have stood the test of years, some of the members of the Convention show a decided inclination to shut their eyes to precedent, and frame a document at once original, progressive and startling. Among the improvements suggested in jurisprudence is the abolition of grand juries, and the establishment of an extremely limited number of courts of justice.

We are informed by a gentleman, recently arrived from Oregon, that there is a possibility that the Constitution will not be adopted when submitted to a vote of the people. There are full two thousand Pro-Slavery votes in the Territory which will be cast against it for its Anti-Slavery clause, to which may be added the votes of those who are opposed to the formation of a State Government at present, and such as may not relish its eccentric provisions. We trust, however, that the Constitution may be accepted, and by a majority large enough to preclude the possibility of a reenaction in that Territory of the disgraceful scenes that will make Kansas long remembered."

Late accounts from the head of Humboldt state that KIRKE's wagon-road party had been attacked by the Indians, but they had been driven off without any loss to the party.

SANDWICH ISLANDS.

Arrivals at San Francisco from the Sandwich Islands bring dates to Sept. 5. There is no news of importance.

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

FINANCIAL REVIEW OF THE FORTNIGHT.

From the San Francisco Globe.

Notwithstanding the many embarrassments under which the financial affairs of California have been placed, says the Prices Current, some of which were inseparable from her condition as an infant commonwealth; in despite of the recklessness which has marked the course of her legislators in the authorization of an enormous indebtedness; or of the dishonesty of some of her officials, in appropriating to their own uses, large sums of the public revenue; and for all that she has been for the last seven years the receptacle of all the useless merchandise that could not be disposed of in other quarters, but which has here been magically turned to gold, to give life and energy to the business affairs of other countries; for all this, we say, there are unquestionable evidences around us that her finances are improving, gradually, but certainly, and that the era of disenthralment is not so far in the distant future as the despanding at home and the ill-advised abroad are too apt to imagine. From the past our people have learned prudence, and the profit of the lesson is beginning to manifest itself.

The receipts of gold dust since the sailing of the last steamer have been very light, owing to the excessive dryness of the season. At the close the supply of bullion is very short, and they are quotable at $17.[illegible]

There is nothing doing in foreign coin, owing to the scarcity. Mexican dollars would readily command 3[illegible] premium.

The stock market is very inactive, and rates of desirable descriptions [illegible]. A lot of $19,000 State Warrants changed hands at [illegible]. Sales of Navigation Stock have been made at [illegible].

Money is comparatively easy, and there is not much demand. The demand [illegible] for the late state issue. State Securities 15 [illegible] cents, and Merchandise 3 [illegible] cent.

Bills of exchange [illegible]

The sales of the third quarter of the year show an amount of sales, and sailing vessels, equal to the last. For the last nine months [illegible] $1,[illegible] in gold. By steamers, [illegible] in gold, and by sailing vessels [illegible] in all, $[illegible]. The decline in our exports of treasure is thus shown to be $1,[illegible]. We have imported less by [illegible] this year than last, however, [illegible] have had [illegible] to pay for. The aggregate for imports, which is a pretty good criterion, falls short of last year by nearly 1 million of dollars. We expect to report, however, that the exports of specie amounting to foreign countries have also fallen off from $2,661,[illegible] in 1856, to $1,[illegible] in 1857—difference $[illegible].

The arrivals since our last, were the clipper ships Sebastian, from Boston; Adelaide, from New-York; Georgia, from Batavia; barks Cenlen, from Hong-Kong; Edward Everett, Hamburg; Family Relief, from Honolulu; and Sebastopol, from Sydney. There were also thirteen coast arrivals.

TREASURE SHIPMENTS.

From the San Francisco Herald, Oct. 5.

The following is a statement of the treasure shipped hence during the past quarter, on steamers, combined with the previous shipments of the year:

To New-York	$8,142,[illegible]
To England	2,280,913 [illegible]
To New-Granada	104,007 [illegible]
Total for three months	$10,544,174 01

The shipments during the last half of the year, by steamers, to New-York, amounted to $16,[illegible] to England, $4,[illegible] 38; to New-Granada, $20,[illegible] 23. These amounts, combined with the above, would make the entire steamer shipments for the nine months as follows:

To New-York	$25,275,022 19
To England	6,[illegible]
To New-Granada	[illegible]
Total	$32,[illegible]

The amount exported at a similar period in 1856 was $36,[illegible] 16, showing a falling off in 1857 of $3,[illegible].

The shipments of treasure by sailing vessels for the quarter just ended have been almost as large as those of the previous six months. This has been in consequence of the forwarding of Mexican dollars for shipment to China, and which, as they are regularly received here by each arrival from Mexico can hardly be said to enter into our exportation of native coin or ores. The shipments have been as follows:

China	$1,121,[illegible]
Australia	65,000
East Indies	1,[illegible]
Society Islands	2,000
Sandwich Islands	107,[illegible]
South America	15,000
Total	$1,[illegible]

During the first half of 1857 the exports amounted to $788,517, making the combined shipments of the nine months [illegible].

From the San Francisco Herald, Oct. 5.

By the steamer yesterday we received news of a financial crisis in New-York. Several of the oldest established banking and insurance firms had succumbed, and railroad stocks had declined to a figure unprecedentedly low. The New-York papers, with commendable prudence, have labored with might and main to allay the excitement, and the probability is, that if they had pursued an opposite course, we should have to chronicle the most wide-spread ruin in the Atlantic States. Here we can discuss the causes of the panic without restraint, and can form an unprejudiced opinion on the subject. It must be confessed that the news of financial distress in New-York, does not excite any unusual degree of surprise in this community. The fact is, we have long expected it, we have by this mail received the worst of the news, or if the recent financial troubles are to be regarded as simply the prelude to that greater, more general and more sweeping crash which is yet to come. But on this branch of the subject we do not propose to speculate at present. "Sufficient with the day is the evil thereof," and in obedience to this wise precept, we will, at this time, confine ourselves exclusively to the facts which are admitted. The panic in New-York, is ascribed to expansion, generally, in importations, the construction of railroads, and in the agricultural productions called by the demand for breadstuffs during the continuance of the great war in Europe. It is not our intention to dispute these premises. They are doubtlessly the cause of the recent failures, though in a remote degree. The immediate cause is the changes observable in the movements of specie. We alluded, a few days ago, that there was a most gratifying diminution in the amount of specie shipped from this port eastward. An examination of the statistics of the Custom-House shows that the diminution amounts to no less than $4,070,185 35, and that it has for the most part taken place during the third quarter of the present year.

Academy of Music.

Few serious operas are so light and pleasant as ROSSINI's "Semiramide." It is an agreeable tragedy, which puts us in good humor, and sends us home with a variety of lively tunes humming in our ears. For this reason it is highly acceptable, and will bear repetition, under certain circumstances, better than any other. The most important conditions are that the Arsace and the Semiramis be good. Having resources to fulfill these conditions, the managers of the Academy were wise, we think, in selecting the opera for the opening night. If we may judge by the appearance of the house—which was not suspiciously crowded—we should say that the opening of the new season was eminently encouraging. The ultimate issue of the campaign will depend on the amount of generalship displayed by the managers. We would advise them to bear in mind constantly that the majority of opera-folks go more for the sake of the singers than the opera—especially where the latter is old and threadbare. Prosperity in the most flourishing times results from the drawing-power of the artists engaged. It will be doubly so now.

Mme. D'ANGRI's début in opera was deservedly successful, and the honors of the evening belong almost exclusively to her. We have had the best portions of the opera given in the concert by this lady, and it is only necessary to add that, with less dramatic power than we gave her credit for possessing, she sustained the lyric interest of the rôle to the end. Her execution, as usual, was faultless, and in some instances really extraordinary.

The Semiramide of Madame LA GRANGE is well known to our readers. Mr. GASSIER, as Assur, did the best he could with a part much too heavy for his delicate and sympathetic organ. The other artists did not distinguish themselves—at least in the right way.

The orchestra, although still too thin, was prompt and good; the chorus much better than usual. In spite of these advantages the performance was a heavy and uninteresting one, and had it not been for the curiosity to hear D'ANGRI, many would have left after the trio in the first act, which was vilely sung.

The next performance is on Wednesday, when the new tenor, Signor BONFANTI, will make his début in VERDI's opera of "Rigoletto."

To the Charitable.

MRS. CHARLOTTE ASHE, an intelligent and worthy free colored woman, has a daughter who is a slave in Mississippi, whose freedom she desires to purchase. Her owner offers to sell her for $1,400, and MRS. ASHE has succeeded in raising $600 of the amount. She is very highly commended by Hon. EDWARD EVERETT, in whose family she lived for some time, as in every way worthy of confidence and aid.

Any persons who may feel disposed to contribute something to aid her in her efforts, can send it to Dr. BAILEY, Editor of the National Era, at Washington.

Little of general interest was elicited during the course of the week, though on Wednesday there was more than the usual activity among the jobbers. Prices generally ruled lower, and at first sales were made at [illegible] in many instances. Extra clear Sugar Cures were sold in small lots, and larger offers of Clear Sugar have been made at the above rates, without any increase in offers. [illegible] Mess Pork, which is a pretty good criterion, falls short of last year by nearly 1 dollar. Massachusetts cannot agree, but not one of their number who has said that speech was unfitness; yet that it is not statesmanlike and prudent in both in its matter and its manner. There is not an discourteous word in it, neither is there an uncivil insinuation about his opinions to the Democrats. Even the Garrisonians had their justice done their motives which, on principle, they never do to the motives of others. Gen. CUSHING has been nominated for the State House of Representatives by the Democrats of his district, with the prospect of being supported by men of other parties; and some of his enemies say that the tone of his speech is due to his hope of conciliating political opponents. Perhaps they are right; but surely the General pays a higher compliment to the sense and taste of the voters when he thinks their support can be won by addressing them in the language of a well-bred man than that person pays them who employs the language of the fish-market to inculcate the ideas of the demagogue. If I must be deluded—the common fate of mortality—certainly I should not prefer, as the agent of the delusion, the howlings of the polecat to the songs of the sirens.

I suppose you have seen the new Magazine—The Atlantic Monthly. The appearance of it is uncommonly good, though I prefer the solid page of Putnam to the leaded page of the Atlantic, which is just contrary to the opinion I should have held in my type-sticking days. The papers give the names of most of the contributors, but I have seen no mention made of the authorship of the second article, "Florentine Mosaics," and which is the best in the number. It is from the pen of LOTHROP MOTLEY, the first of American historians, and who shows that he is as skillful in light literature as in the highest department of history. The plan of keeping the names of the contributors secret, has entirely failed—more's the pity—for half the authority of a publication of the kind, perhaps more, must depend upon the antecedents being preserved for its pages. At the utmost, people should be allowed only to guess at the writers. A capital mistake was made by the publishers in announcing a list of contributors, for not only did this take the reading public into their confidence, but it raised expectations that never can be fulfilled. When readers are told that PARSONS, and HAWTHORNE, and EMERSON, and WHITTIER, and FELTON, and QUINCY, and EWBANK, and a dozen others of similar literary rank, are to furnish their mental food, they are not likely to be satisfied with the efforts of common men. It is as if men were asked to sit down to a course of baked locust, after having received special invitation to a banquet to be prepared by Monsieur ALEXIS SOYER. The common writers are quite as likely to do well as the great ones, but you could never make people believe it. There is nothing like names, whatever the lady of Verona may say to the contrary.

October closes gloomily, after almost a week of rain, and a full week of mud. Ordinarily the finest month of the twelve, this year it has been the worst; so, perhaps, to match with the times.

The annual Thanksgiving is to take place on the 26th of November, the Governor having kept back the proclamation until within the last two or three days. I suppose we are to be thankful for the same reason that poor old GEORGE the Third was thankful at the close of the American war—because of things being no worse.

There is nothing said about bank resumption, and the subject seems to have been passed over by common consent. There is not the slightest difficulty in getting specie, unless you are poor, and particularly need it. THYRZ.

P. S.—The following was the vote for Governor in this State last year:

Gardner	92,467	Bell, (Whig)	7,875
Beach	40,062	Scattering	6,916
Gordon, (Fill.)	19,365

The vote for Presidential Electors was larger by some thousands.

MEXICO.

Depredations of Bandits and Unsettled State of the Country—Necessity for a Dictatorship—Difference Between the Positions of Santa Ana and General Comonfort—Probabilities of the Latter's Downfall, &c.

From Our Own Correspondent.

MEXICO, Monday, Oct. 19.

The chapter of events for the past fortnight, I regret to say, is not of the most cheering character. Each day new proofs of the dissolving condition of this country come to hand. About one-half of the United States of Mexico are actually experiencing the evils of predatory wars or are in constant fear of such visitations. The experiment of a Federal Government in Mexico has been fully tried so far as all hopes may be entertained of Government in that manner. But a few months have elapsed since the State Governments were organized under the new Federal Constitution, but enough of time has transpired to show conclusively the pusillanimity of the State Legislatures and the entire absurdity of a real republican form of government in a country that is blessed with such a small quota of practical common sense.

Although the number of Sophists (of the same style that cursed Greece in the days of SOCRATES) in Mexico is very large, there are but a very few who understand anything of the forms of modern Government. The Congress of the nation and the Legislatures of the States are filled with Sophists. They are suited for flowery and well-turned speeches, but cannot understand the present condition of the country, nor can they do anything to save it from the troubles it is daily flowing into. As the Legislatures have become masters of States, as have robberies, murders and revolutions increased; as the powers have fallen from the hands of President COMONFORT, so has disorganization made itself manifest in all parts of the country. The Legislatures are at work to maintain their preponderance of power over the Governors, and in the meantime, robbers and revolutionists rob and disturb the country; the general Congress of the nation deliberate to withhold the proper power from the President, and day by day the army is becoming thinned by desertions, and the balance, becoming starved for want of pay, are daily becoming more troublesome.

In no country does the old adage, that "too many cooks spoil the broth," apply so well as in this. Great men are scarce in this country. SANTA ANA was, in his time, a really great man, and I believe that COMONFORT is more than his equal as an executive for Mexico; but there is this difference in the situations of these two men: SANTA ANA had a treasury and an army, but COMONFORT has not these two apparent necessities in a government. COMONFORT has had a comparatively weak army and no treasury. He has been forced to twist and turn in every shape to sustain himself, and has, up to the present time, managed with great adroitness. But all this I fear, will be lost if he is not able to do something during in the next few days. At present the Congress is pitted against him, the army is discontented for want of pay, and hourly his position looks worse. The present week will likely bring COMONFORT down, or he will be forced to kick out the Congress.

This Congress is willing to give extraordinary powers, but is undecided to whom they shall be given. LERDO DE TEJADA is named, also BENITO JUAREZ, and JUAN JOSE BAZ, late Governor of this city and district. Each one of these gentlemen has many friends. The friends of the one are the enemies of the other. At present, no serious breaks have taken place between them, but the intimation that COMONFORT is nearly lost, then must come new warm strife, and doubtless bad feelings will ensue. The result of the intrigue no one can tell. It complicates, as exceedingly doubtful. At present COMONFORT's chances look small, but it is possible for him to rally very fast, and should he recover himself again, he will be stronger than ever.

As the general news of the country for the last fortnight is made up of robberies, murders, &c., I will refer you to the journals of this capital for those interesting details.

BUTTE ISLAND.—It was recently stated that the Secretary of the Navy would refuse to carry into effect the provision made by Congress, at the last session, for the purchase of Blythe Island for a naval depot. But this, it is now said, is a mistake. The heavy other reports in regard to a reduction of expenditures. The title to the island has not been examined and approved by the Attorney-General, nor has the State of Georgia ceded to the United States the jurisdiction over the island necessary for the depot. The Legislature will, no doubt, do this at the approaching session.

Revolt in the Dutch East Indies.

NEW-YORK, Saturday, Oct. 31, 1857.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The last report of news from British India was accompanied by a short statement relative to the Dutch East Indies, which, in view of the great interest awakened by events transpiring in the former country, probably attracted very little attention. It was stated that serious apprehensions of revolt in Java were entertained by the European residents. Information from that quarter, derived from private sources, (as very little can transpire through public ones,) has, for some time past, even previous to the breaking out of the Sepoy rebellion, convinced many in this country, whose attention has been directed to the condition of the East Indian Archipelago, that the Dutch were in imminent danger of having their power and prestige in the Indian seas put to a very severe test; but, in their case, the danger arises not from a demoralized army, but from an irritated and a united people.

Dutch dominion in Java and neighboring islands is maintained upon even a more slender footing than that of the British in the Indian Peninsula. The Netherlands Indian army is composed of about 2,500 European troops and 6,000 native soldiers, who have to control 16,000,000 of people chiefly in Java, and partly in Sumatra, Borneo and the Moluccas. The native force has been wisely made up from different races;—Malays, Javanese, Dayaks, Bughinese and Alfuras, and may be relied upon by the Government; but not so with regard to the people of Sumatra,—the warlike Battaks and Pessumesa, who are at this time keeping up an active partisan warfare with the Dutch; and not so as regards the rude and honest Sundese, the Javan mountaineers, nor the Alfuras of the Celebes group, nor the fierce Lanuns of the Sulu sea,—all of whom are at this time, at various points, menacing the grasping and impolitic monopolists of "Amsterdam, Rotterdam and Dort;" and ready to revenge the perfidies and brutalities of Both and Volckenier, and revive the terrors inspired by Lintot and Deepo Neghoro.

Several Dutch civil officers, Postheeders and Packhuismeesters, have been recently slain by natives in an open and daring manner, whilst in the discharge of their duties. This has happened in the Preanger Regencies of Java, and in the Lampong District and Residency of Palembang, in Sumatra. A conspiracy, said to be as terribly comprehensive in its purposes as that of ERMERFELDE, the half-breed, has been recently discovered, although there is no mention of any arrest of note. The Lanuns are breaking forth in unusual force from their pirate haunts; and all their destructive ferocity seems to be directed against those petty islands, and those native vessels that claim the protection of the Dutch flag. The Alfuras of Celebes have been cutting off some small parties of Dutchmen, and large reinforcements have been ordered to Macassar. The Kongsis of the northeast coast of Borneo have killed a Dutch Postheeder and taken possession of a small fort, and thus, at the most important points, strong evidences of hostility to Dutch dominion are shown throughout the Archipelago.

The general diffusion of the Malay language throughout the Archipelagian seas facilitates a very extensive intercourse among the several insular nations; and as Malay literature and Malay customs are acquiring a dominant influence, all of the Archipelagian races are affected by Malay designs and sympathies. The well-informed Dayaks of Borneo, and the Bughinese of Celebes, take as much interest in the traditions of Menangkabau, and the storied feats of Laksamana, as the polished Malay chieftains of Achin and Jambee. The Shibboleth of the Malays, that the Orang Malays (justly designated as the Normen of the Eastern seas) shall grow to a great nation "throughout the seas, beneath and above the winds," (which comprehensive designation signifies all the region affected by the northwest and southeast Monsoons,) and shall have their metropolis in the sacred valley of Menangkabau, is now incorporated in the songs and stories of all the semi-civilized races of the Archipelago.

Whatever the hopes and whatever the purposes of the Malay races, and whatever their feeling of hostility to their present European masters, they have never shown any special hostility to the European race. In this particular, these Asiatic islanders differ essentially from the proud, conceited and inveterately prejudiced natives of the Asiatic continent. The amiable and simple Javanese, as well as the crafty and warlike Sumatrans most cordially acknowledge the excellency and superiority of many of the contrivances and appliances of their tuan besar, the European officer or merchant. The Javanese under DEEPO NEGHORO that evinced such hatred to Dutch rule, were the most zealously faith of subjects under the wise administration of the English Raffles; and now, as we learn by late mails, the Sumatrans at Siak, hitherto deemed to be and unquestionably are independent, fearing the approach of Dutch interference, and detesting the Dutch people, have applied to British subjects at Singapore for aid, having previously applied in vain to the British Government, which was prevented from giving attention to their petition by reason of the restrictions of the treaty of 1824. Subsequently the people of Siak have made overtures to an American commanding a vessel in those seas, offering to him the same advantages, that were presented to Rajah BROOKE by the Sultan of Brunei, if he would aid with his vessel, people, and guns to defend the Siak River.

The East Indian Archipelago offers us a better market for our products and manufactures, than all China and India does, according to the present operations of trade in that quarter, as the Archipelagians are ready to take our products for their valuable staples; therefore it behooves us to give some especial attention to Malaysian affairs; and we need not feel any regrets, or apprehension of loss to our interests, if efforts should be made, and should succeed there, in maintaining a righteous independence. Political and Social Condition of Tuscany.

SIR: In your paper of Wednesday, Oct. 28, there appeared a letter from your correspondent, "Dick Tinto," on Tuscany. Having resided for many years in that beautiful and prosperous country, I cannot agree with your correspondent in the gloomy views which he expresses on the subject of Italian character, enterprise and industry.

As I do not consider the columns of a newspaper fitting place for religious controversy, I shall not question whether the melancholy state of things which he describes (admitting for the moment that they exist) is, or is not, caused by Mahomedanism. But it is strange, if your correspondent is right, that during the palmy days of the old Florentine Republic, when it was the "seat of the wealth, commerce and industry which made princes of the Medici and other noble families," the people were just as much "Madonnaists" as they are to-day. The glorious Duomo, the forerunner of St. Peter's, was raised and dedicated in honor of St. Maria del Fiori; another Church, so beautiful that BUONAROTTI called it his bride, St. Maria Novella, the Annunziata, with its alleged miraculous virgin, and many others decorated by the frescoes of GIOTTO, FRA ANGELICO, ANDREA DEL SARTO and other artists of the golden age of art, now the traveler's chief attraction during his sojourn in Florence, remain to testify the devotion of the brave old Republic to the Madonna.

Turning from the churches to the galleries of art, we find that the chef d'œuvres, to which artists from all countries look for instruction, represent holy families, madonnas and legends of the Saints. Have modern artists equaled their predecessors, who were "Madonnaists?" Many art critics, among others, and perhaps the most competent, RUSKIN, consider that as artists, for their faith, as artists, and that because every one is faithful, only as they show corruption, DANTE, his great poem proves it, was a "Madonnaist." It is true, Tuscany has now no poet who equals him. Has any other country? Nay, is there any name, even SHAKSPEARE, to be placed beside his? I believe not. In the words of the epitaph, "Alterum non ferunt."

Tuscany has poets and artists still. The names of GIUSEPPE GUERRAZZI and BERTOLINI, the sculptor, who died a few years since, are known beyond the "precincts of the Peninsula."

Your correspondent asserts that the trade and commerce of the country are almost entirely in the hands of foreigners. Has he never seen the porcelain manufactory of the Marquis GINORI, who gained a prize at Paris in 1855, for the beauty of his productions? Of the Government Mosaic Works? which are unique. What of the borax mines? the great export of the country—their proprietor, Count SARDOVELLI, is Tuscan. Has he visited the factories of Prato, Pestoia, and the Silk Works at Lucca, all in the hands of Italians? Mr. SLOANE, the proprietor of the rich copper mines near Monte Catini, is, unfortunately for your correspondent's theory, an exceedingly devout Madonnaist. Why should "Madonnaism" interest with Englishmen while it degrades the Italian?

There is a large resident and fleeting English population in Florence; they require an English apothecary to compound the strong doses which they imbibe in. Mr. ROSSMAN, the druggist, does a good business with his compatriots. If the Florentine chemists starve, it must be than their fellow-citizens are distressingly healthy. There are two English stores, both grocers, and three French, in the whole city. The banking establishments of any importance are Italian. FLORENTINO.

Railroad Management.

SIR: Several articles have appeared in your paper directing public attention towards the mismanagement of Railroads, but in none of them which I have seen has such a remedy for the abuses pointed out been suggested as it seems to me, experience dictates. The present critical financial condition of the Railroads of the United States, though attributed by many persons to panic, has not been wholly unforeseen by others who have little beyond a theoretical interest in the matter one way or the other, and is not in the least degree surprising to one who has spent a great part of his life engaged in business which has given him a pretty intimate knowledge of the character and ability of some of the prominent railroad men of the country. A rather common opinion is held, that any man who chooses to exert himself for the purpose a short time, can become sufficiently familiar with railroads to be made President, Vice-President or Superintendent, or manager of one of them; and that in selecting such an officer, stockholders should look rather for shrewdness, energy and a general knowledge of business, than for integrity and experience. On nine out of ten railroads the President exercises, either openly or indirectly, almost independent control—the rest of the directors have their own private affairs to look after, having obtained their election for the sake, perhaps, of free passes, or in order to promote their own interests in the way of business totally disconnected with the general interests of the stockholders—themselves holding very few shares.

Now, whatever may be said to the contrary, a great railroad is a very difficult machine to manage well. Can one be named that is in all respects managed well? The present system has been most perseveringly tried, and the disastrous result is now before us! Experience and good judgment concerning the peculiar kind of business referred to, would be as advantageously exercised, and is *in fact as indispensable for the successful direc*tion of railroads, financially and mechanically, as for any craft or business, but men possessing such information, good judgment and experience combined, are not to be had for the inducement offered; indeed they do not at present exist as a class in the community for the reason that sufficient inducement has never yet been held out to create such a class.

It is true that stockholders are ready enough, when their case becomes desperate, to pay an extravagant salary in the hope of securing the right man for their emergency, the consequence sometimes being only to exhibit more clearly to the public their deplorable condition, and to bring about a more speedy crisis—but indirect gains, independent of salary, are too often the reward sought by railroad managers. And so long as such means of remuneration are tolerated in the case of a President, we must be prepared to allow some corresponding method of self-payment to be enjoyed by the subordinates. Hence the difficulty of ascertaining the real cost of managing and operating any railroad. The men wanted as railroad managers are honest men, who know the value of and how to encourage honesty in those who act under them. They must have peculiar and rare ability in the control and direction of large numbers of intelligent men; they should possess financial ability enough to know whether a dividend is earned or not; mechanical knowledge, general information, and freedom from prejudice to allow them to take advantage of the economical improvements ready to be introduced about them, or being introduced elsewhere. After the money now so urgently asked for is obtained, something else will be needed to prevent a gradual wasting away of the great property involved, and the simplest and most rational way of providing for the necessity is at once to set about the encouragement of a class of men as Railroad Managers, who will work fairly for their employers, instead of wholly for themselves, and are qualified for what they undertake. Yours, very respectfully,

A RAILROAD STOCKHOLDER.

A Legal Defect.

NEW-YORK, Saturday, Oct. 31, 1857.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I wish to make a suggestion as to a needed reform in legal matters in our City. It is well known to the bar, and also to the merchants of the City, that when a judgment is recovered in any of our Courts, it must be docketed in the office of the County Clerk before it can become a lien upon the real estate of the party against whom it is recovered. Such judgment becomes a lien upon personal property only when an execution has been issued and an actual levy made. When a judgment is recovered in the Supreme, Superior, Common Pleas or Marine Court, it must be docketed in the office of the County Clerk before an execution against either real or personal property can be issued. Hence it is very easy to ascertain, by applying to the County Clerk, whether any judgment exists of record against a party. But we have seven Justices' Courts in the City, and when A recovers a judgment in one of those Courts against B, it is optional with A to docket the judgment in the County Clerk's Office, or to issue execution, without such docketing, directly to a constable. The constables are illimitable in number. C wishes to purchase a stock of goods of B, but he has heard that judgment has been recovered against B somewhere. There may be a levy on those goods, and he not safe in buying them. He goes to the County Clerk and finds no judgment there. So far, well. But it may be a judgment in a Justice's Court, and some constable have made a levy. How is this to be ascertained except by running to any different quarters? I experienced the difficulty of this to-day in a transaction for a client. I suggest as a remedy for this that the following section be added to the act regulating our District Courts:

"Whenever a judgment is rendered in any of these Courts it shall be the duty of the Clerk of such Court forthwith to file for docketing a transcript of such judgment with the Clerk of the City and County of New-York, upon which transcript shall be indorsed the Court in which such judgment was recovered, and the name of the complainant in whose favor the execution is to issue. If any execution issued on such judgment be not issued within one year, the judgment, the Clerk shall file with the Clerk of the City and County a memorandum of the same, or if any execution shall be issued upon any judgment in a Justices' Court until such transcript be filed, and the same of the execution registered in said County Clerk's office."

By such an act we should be able to ascertain at once, by applying to the County Clerk, the position, so far as judgments are concerned, of every man with whom we are dealing.

A LAWYER.

More Murders.

A horrible affair occurred last week in Iowa. The Keokuk (Wis.) Telegraph has a letter describing to Mr. ABBOT, Editor of the New-Haven Register, was married a short time since to a Miss JENKINS, who had previously been engaged to another man, by the name of HARLEY. HARLEY, on the morning of the wedding-day, had threatened Miss JENKINS with revenge, if she persisted in marrying his rival. On the 16th of September, HARLEY came to ADAMS' house while the latter was absent with his wife, and finding it only occupied by an old negro woman, knocked her down with an axe, fracturing her skull, and then proceeded to demolish all the furniture and disfigure the premises. The next morning ADAMS armed himself with a rifle and a knife and went in search of HARLEY. He had not far to go, for about one hundred yards from the house, on the road which passes through a strip of woods, he met HARLEY, apparently proceeding to complete his work of destruction. A farmer's boy, who happened to be a short distance behind, was the sole witness of the dreadful scene that ensued, and which from his blood with terror. A short but violent conversation commenced between the two, when ADAMS discharged his rifle, only wounding HARLEY in the arm. HARLEY, a large athletic man, then closed with him, and a terrible conflict followed. ADAMS at last received a fatal blow from his antagonist's knife, and HARLEY, though cut almost to pieces, raised the dead body, with the knife still stuck in his breast, and deposited it in the presence of Mrs. ADAMS. The boy followed mechanically to see the dispersed too frightened to summon assistance, and too weak to give a hand. Mrs. ADAMS received the murderer with a shriek, and fell fainting upon the corpse. HARLEY had just strength enough to draw the knife and sending her features until not a lineament was recognizable, plunged it into his own heart, and fell back, his hand still grasping the hair of his victim. The boy at last sufficiently recovered himself to run for aid. When it came both men were dead and Mrs. ADAMS insensible, having almost bled to death.

At Auburn, N. Y., on Friday, MICHAEL BRANNAN, convicted of the murder of JAMES R. BEARDS, was sentenced to be hung on the 18th of December. BRANNAN made a speech to Judge and Jury, charging them that he had no hand feelings to wrong them, but affected his entire innocence of the crime. He said he was, from his youth up, a wild and rollicking boy, and advised all young men to be warned by his fate and avoid his course. He said: "I suppose I shall be swung into eternity on this verdict of the Grand Jury; but I'm innocent! So much for being in bad company! I can't help all this now. But I have to request that if I am hung, as I expect I shall be, that I shall be strung up in public where the people can see me. I don't know as the law allows this, but I hope it does. I don't want to meet this kind of death in a little room in one corner of the jail, with half a dozen or so of folks about me. If I never be executed I want the people to see it done." A singular peculiarity of this trial is to be found in the fact, that the prisoner was convicted upon entirely circumstantial evidence. There was not a particle of positive evidence in the case.

At the Fair grounds, near Richmond, Va., last week, a negro man named HARRY was killed by NIXON B. DICKINSON, a commission merchant of Richmond. HARRY had a refreshment stand at the fair. DICKINSON went to dun him for pay for articles furnished from his store; high words followed, and DICKINSON seized a carving knife and stabbed HARRY, who died soon after. He leaves a widow and six children. DICKINSON gave himself up, and is in jail.

Near Norfolk, Va., last Friday, a gang of ruffians went to the house of an Irishman named WOLFE—familiarly known as "the old charcoal man"—and after driving an old negro woman out of doors, beat WOLFE unmercifully about the head and neck, so that, when discovered on Saturday, he was dead from the effect of his bruises. They broke open every chest and drawer in the house, and cleared out with WOLFE's little hoard of money.

A shocking tragedy occurred in Rangely, Franklin County, Maine, a few days since. A boy was shot by his father, HARRY WILSON, who has at times been subject to insanity. The boy, a lad of eleven years, was lying sick with fever, and so low as to be unable to help himself. Coming into the room, the father deliberately took down his gun from the wall where it hung, and before his intentions became known to those present fired at his son. The boy lingered but a few hours.

Supposed Loss of the Captain and Three of the Crew of Bark David Nickels.

Correspondence of the Savannah Morning News.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Sunday, Oct. 18, 1857.

Mr. EDITOR: The bark David Nickels, of Searsport, Me., from Matanzas, Cuba, to St. Mary's, Ga., in ballast, arrived at this port this morning, in distress. It appears that when about 25 miles from this place, about 8 o'clock on the evening of yesterday, the 17th inst., the Captain (whose name the second mate reports as Bern) while in the act of harpooning a dolphin fell overboard, when the first mate and two of the crew lowered a boat and went in search of him. There remained on board but two of the crew and the cook, one of whom reports himself as second mate. He hove the vessel to, and hoisted a light, and remained about the place for a long time; not seeing them return, he set sail, and reached this city about 7 o'clock this morning. The above is the report of the second mate, who gives his name as CHARLES SMITH.

The citizens of this place were some what surprised at seeing the vessel come over at a very about place, paying no regard to the old and regular bars or buoys; but as luck would have it, the tide was high, and the calm over without injury.

I have heard the place of their loss went in search of the missing, but returned this evening without having seen anything of them. It is strange that the second mate does not know where he was at the time of the disaster; he could not tell whether he was north or south of this place. I suppose another search will be made to-morrow.

Yours, E. S.

Emigration Back to Ireland.

From The Dublin.

One of the effects of the present commercial crisis is an ebb in the hitherto flowing tide of emigration. To see a ship laden with emigrants from America to Ireland is a novel sight. On Saturday last the clipper ship Dreadnought sailed from this port for Liverpool, with three hundred and forty passengers, the largest number ever taken in a sailing vessel from this country to Europe. Most of these are destined for Ireland. We also learn from Massachusetts papers that numbers of Irishmen are leaving that State for their native land. Up to the present time the emigration to the United States for this year has exceeded that of the corresponding period of last year. But the news of commercial and manufacturing distress which has by this time reached the old country will check the exodus, and when the aspect grant shipping reaches the shores of Great Britain and Ireland full of passengers from this country, the effect will be to arrest emigration altogether, or rather to divert it wholly to Australia, whither it has already been very great, and every day increasing.

LONG ISLAND.

NEW LIGHT-HOUSES ON LONG ISLAND.—Four new light-houses are to be added to the coast illumination on Long Island, some of which have been completed, and others are in progress. The frequent occurrence of wrecks upon the coast of Long Island, about midway between Montauk and Fire Island, has been attributed to the absence of a good coast light between these two points. To supply the omission, the Light-House Department are employed in the erection of a light between these two points, that is, opposite and about 12 miles south of Riverhead, on the main. The location is on Fungusy Point, Great West Bay, 40 miles west of Montauk, the same distance east of Fire Island, and about a mile and a half north of the outer beach. The work is under the superintendence of Lieut. J. C. DUANE. The structure is a round tower of brick, 32 feet at the base, and the sight to be 170 feet above mean tide water. The walls are 2 feet thick, tapering to the top, leaving on the inside space of 16 feet 8 inches which is occupied by a spiral stairway of iron, supported on one side by the wall, and on the other by an iron column running perpendicularly up through the centre. The work has already progressed to the height of 100 feet.

The Light will probably be ready for use by the middle of December, and when completed will be higher by 24 feet than any other light-house tower in the United States. Forty-one men are employed under the direction of Mr. EDWARD HALL. The work was commenced in April.

The new Light-House at Horton's Point, (Southold,) is completed and ready for lightings; and that at Lloyd's Neck was finished about the same time.

The work upon the new Light-House at Fire Island is progressing; the foundation is to be 132 feet in diameter, and the height of tower 170 feet. Fifty-three men, under the supervision of Mr. WM. LAMB, are engaged upon the work. It will require another year for its completion.

Special Dispatch to The Times.

WASHINGTON, Monday, Nov. 2.

Governor WALKER issued a proclamation this morning declaring the Territory of Kansas in a state of insurrection, and calling upon the "law-abiding citizens" to assist the Marshal in dispersing the revolutionists who are now in arms against the Government. The proclamation also calls upon the Militia to be in readiness to obey the orders of the Marshal.

The Navy Department has ordered the Sloop-of-war Cyane to Aspinwall, to be there on the 15th inst., to convey the Mail Steamer to Panama.

Mr. BUCHANAN will not remove or publicly reprimand Governor WALKER, he does, however, intend to express his disapprobation of his conduct in a pointed letter to WALKER, charging him with violating his instructions, and rendering him liable to be recalled at any moment.

Mr. BUCHANAN will not be in Washington before the 15th inst., and Mr. DAVIS must be in charge, for it is well known that Mr. BUCHANAN can dream of no other "authority" than the Secretary of State.

Mr. BUCHANAN does not approve the Walker policy. "The best answer to the Kansas outrages," states that he had it upon "the best authority" that Mr. BUCHANAN does not approve the Walker policy. "The best answer to the Kansas outrages," states that he had it upon "the best authority" that Mr. BUCHANAN does not approve the Walker policy, and that he intends to pay no heed to the Kansas outrages, but to pursue a strict conservatism of time and patience.

Governor WALKER's important address and his proclamation, issued on the 1st inst., have not been received by the Secretary of State, but he has seen the substance of them in the telegraphic dispatches, and has telegraphed to Governor WALKER, directing him to be in readiness to obey the orders of the Marshal in dispersing the revolutionists.

Governor WALKER's proclamation declares the Territory of Kansas in a state of insurrection, and calls upon the Militia to be in readiness to obey the orders of the Marshal in dispersing the revolutionists.

[From the Philadelphia Evening Post.]

The Northern Democracy, and, we believe, the great majority of the party everywhere, maintain that all measures of the party government, including the Constitution itself, which shall be referred, for approval or rejection, to the people of the county, the party, or any other platform. It is the honest, the right way, and the only way left, by which we can manage sectional affairs. North or South, there is no opposition to our whole scheme of government—to the wisest, practical and free application of our country's resources and its candidates. Our Democratic Party, it is true, have no more power to alter the laws of American politics than to revise the laws of gravitation. But it is power a principle which we can and control our affairs, under the laws of moral institutions. It is simply the right of the people to govern themselves. The question this right is not to be settled by a majority of principle, and we maintain that it is the duty of our Democratic party, to attempt to overthrow the sovereignty of the people, rather be vanquished in a contest of principle, and we maintain that the doctrine of our Democratic party, which, in Congress, from the free States who have voted against the Convention of Kansas, to the people of Kansas in the matter of the Constitution, to propose votes, in the Democratic Register, the organ of the Administration party in Virginia, is unreserved in the doctrine that the people are the controlling power. The action of the Convention should go on the ground that the people who resist it must take the consequences, and that the people interested, and that they shall settle for themselves the question of slavery, or prohibition, in the formation of the will of the majority.

Parade of the Unemployed—Meeting in the Park.—Between one and two thousand of the unemployed laborers of the City, met yesterday morning in the Park, marched by a man with a drum, and with a banner on which was written:

WORK—ARBEIT.

After passing in front of the principal newspaper offices, they proceeded to the Park, and from the steps of the City Hall made speeches to each other, and to their threatening the City with bloodiest vengeance if a single child should starve during the Winter in consequence of the scarcity of employment. The first speaker expressed the opinion that if there were before a thousand should perish by the sword, they would die by starvation; and concluded with an intimation, that if an instance of starvation should occur, the sword should find immediately its victims. Subsequently, there was a modification of tone. From the sword and dire results from its use in the hands of a hungry man, they came to threatening the various political parties with their combined opposition. One gentleman gave his view of the several political organizations and arrived at the conclusion, that there was nothing to expect from any of them—except the Democratic Party, and therefore he advised them to "Go for the Democratic State Ticket." When this had been said, the object of the parade, and gathering in the Park, seemed to have been attained, for nothing further was attempted. The excitement was confined to the speakers almost exclusively. Those who were not in earnest with addresses were orderly, and did not appear unusually interested. They had nothing else to do, and seemed to think they might as well attend there as anywhere else.

Fires.

Fire in West Forty-first-street.—Narrow Escape of a Woman and Child.—At a quarter to 6 yesterday morning a fire broke out in the frame building No. 39 West Forty-first-street, occupied on the first and second floors by Mr. Frederick Schneider as a beer saloon and concert hall. Mr. Schneider's stock of lager bier and other liquors, and the fixtures of his concert-room were entirely destroyed. His insurance $1,000, on which there is an insurance of $1,000 in the Ætna Insurance Company, Hartford, Conn. Mrs. Reuter and a young child, who occupied a room on the fourth floor as a sleeping apartment, had a narrow escape. The fire had unknown hitherto appeared that the only way of reaching them was by a ladder. Frank Ryan and Ralph Rice, of Rock and Ladder Company No. 6, succeeded in their rescue and were successful in bringing them in safety from their perilous position. Dr. E. Nissen owned the building. His loss was $3,000. Insured for $2,000 in the Stuyvesant Insurance Company.

Fire in Eighth-avenue.—At 2½ o'clock yesterday morning a fire was discovered in the hat, cap and gentlemen's furnishing store No. 607 Eighth-avenue, kept by Mr. Cantowers. Fortunately the fire was extinguished before much damage was done, the loss being only $300, which is covered by insurance of $600 in the Pacific Insurance Company on the stock, and $200 on the furniture.

UNTIL FURTHER NOTICE, THE SUPERB Photographs of M. B. BRADY will be sold at half their former price. The reduction is due partly to the enhanced value of money, but principally to the introduction of a process which materially diminishes the cost of their production.

FULL-LENGTH—LIFE SIZES,
Photographed on Canvas and finished in Oil. They are similar in appearance, although more accurate resemblances, than ordinary oil-paintings.

MEDALLION—LIFE SIZES,
Finished in oil at $20 each. They have hitherto been sold at $40. Copies from Daguerreotypes in this style present the perfect effect of life, and the result is of course permanent. Those who possess fading portraits of deceased friends may rely upon obtaining accurate portraits of life size, finished in a manner which assures durability.

LIFE SIZES, IN CRAYON.
A new style of Portrait just introduced. They blend the delicacy of the Crayon Sketch with the vigorous effect of the Photograph in a remarkable degree. They are sold at from $20 to $60.

CRAYON VIGNETTES,
suited to the portrayal of ladies or children, are also a new feature in Photography. A sitting for either of the above styles occupies but three seconds.

LARGE GROUPS
Of FAMILIES or FRIENDS are taken almost instantaneously, and may be made of any desired size. Taken by the new process, groups are free from the crude severity which usually characterizes those made by the Camera. Twenty or thirty persons may be portrayed at once perfectly. The result may be finished in oil or water colors, and is susceptible of the most elaborate artistic finish. The ease and simplicity with which they are made render them comparatively inexpensive. Portraits of an entire family may be obtained by this method at little more than the cost of a single picture.

THE IMPERIAL PHOTOGRAPH.
The most exquisite and elaborate product of the Camera, is made at BRADY'S GALLERY ONLY. Copies have heretofore been sold at $60, $80 and $40. They are now offered at $50, $25 and $20.

No successful imitation of this celebrated Picture has yet been made. It is an unique feature in Photography—its most perfect and successful application thus far.

PHOTOGRAPHS IN WATER COLORS
Possess, in addition to their reality as likenesses, the brilliant artistic effect of water-color sketches. These exhibited by Mr. Brady are pronounced by recent visitors to European galleries superior to any similar works in Europe.

From twenty to thirty different styles of portraits are made at Brady's Gallery, adapted to every taste and designed to accommodate every pecuniary condition. The elaborate groups, in water and oil colors, range from $200 to $250 each; single portraits from $3 to $75. Where a large number of duplicates are required the price is diminished largely. Photographs suitable for interchange among classes or clubs are made at from $3 to $20 per dozen. Portraits, which a year since were sold at $40, may now be procured for $15.

The announcement of this reduction in price has had the effect of creating a demand which the resources of the establishment will be taxed to the utmost to supply. As the causes which necessitate this decline are in a measure transient, a partial resumption of the old prices will ultimately become necessary. These, therefore, who design to take advantage of the opportunity which the present occasion offers, should do so at an early date.

THE COLLECTION
Of specimen pictures has recently been enriched by numerous valuable additions; among these are portraits of Frezzolini, Vestvali, Charlotte Cushman, Charles Mathews, Thalberg, Brignoli, Juliana May, Mlle. Rolla, Miss Hosmer, the female sculptor, Paul Kaulbach, Church, Van Buren, Macready, Benton, Pierce, Dickinson, Buchanan, Guthrie, N. P. Banks, R. J. Walker, Bryant, Bancroft, Willis, Halleck, Lowell, Curtis, Cozzens, Edgar A. Poe, Tuckerman, Henry C. Cary, Lord Macaulay, and minor celebrities without number. There are few persons of note in the country who are not represented in the collection.

BRADY'S LOWER GALLERY,
No. 205 Broadway, will be found convenient for those occupied down town who desire portraits. It is in the vicinity of the Astor House, corner of Fulton-st.

THE UPPER GALLERY is No. 359 Broadway, over Thompson's Saloon.

SPECIAL NOTICE!

TO THE STOCKHOLDERS, BONDHOLDERS, AND CREDITORS OF THE DELAWARE, LACKAWANNA AND WESTERN RAILROAD COMPANY.

The Committee appointed at a meeting of the Stockholders and Bondholders of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company, on the 23d ult., to confer with the Managers of the said Company, and devise a plan to relieve the Company from its present embarrassments, respectfully

REPORT

That, after several conferences with a Committee of the Board of Managers, and much deliberation on the present condition of the Company, the undersigned recommend to the Stockholders, Bondholders and creditors of the Company the adoption of the following plan, which will save the affairs of the Company, and enable the road in the hands of the Managers to continue the business of the Company uninterrupted:

FIRST—That the Stockholders be required to pay ten per cent on the par value of the shares held by them respectively, in cash, or notes payable in three and six months from the date, at the option of the subscriber, or, in lieu thereof, surrender a portion of their stock. For such contribution in cash or notes, when paid, the Company to give 7 per cent. Income Bonds payable in ten years, at par, there being no legal authority to issue them under par; the Stock that may be surrendered to be placed in the hands of Trustees, without authority to vote thereon, but with power to sell the same at not less than par—the proceeds thereof to be appropriated to the retiring any of the obligations of the Company, which may be held at or under par, giving preference to those maturing first, provided they can be had on as favorable terms as the others.

Any dividends on this stock that may be declared by the Company, shall be paid to the said Trustees, to be used in retiring the obligations of the Company, as just above stated: the object to contribute in one of the modes named to insure the success of the undertaking.

SECOND—That the Stockholders in the Warren Railroad Company be required to surrender $280,000, or 35 per cent of their stock to be cancelled.

THIRD—That the Cayuga and Susquehanna Railroad Company be required to reduce the amount paid for the use of their road $15,000—say from $70,000 to $55,000 per annum.

FOURTH—That the First Mortgage Bondholders be requested to take the Income Bonds of the Company, payable in five years, for one year's interest on their bonds; and the Second Mortgage bondholders the Income Bonds of the Company, payable in five years, for two years interest on their bonds. When the amount of interest thus deferred, held by any one person, does not amount to $70, (the lowest amount for which it is proposed to issue the bonds of the Company,) it is proposed to indorse on the coupons for lesser sums, deferring the payment for the same period; the bondholders retaining the coupons, so indorsed, in their own possession. The Income Bonds issued to the bondholders holding $70 and upwards, to be secured by their coupons being placed in trust, to be surrendered to the Company on the payment of the bondholders interest for them, or, if they prefer it, they can have their coupons indorsed in the same way as above, retaining the coupons in their possession.

By this arrangement the Bondholders grant this accommodation to the Company, which is absolutely needed, without losing any of their security.

FIFTH—That the creditors who have no security, (except the employes on the line of the road and at the mines,) take the Convertible Income Bonds of the Company, at ten years, in payment of the amount of their claims. The employes, miners, &c., to be paid their claims in money.

SIXTH—That the creditors who made advances last Spring, to relieve the Company from great embarrassment, under a solemn pledge that the debt should be confidential, and who in consequence of such pledge, are injured in the assignment, be requested to waive their rights secured thereby, and take the obligations of the Company, payable in three, six, nine, twelve, and eighteen months, principal and interest to be paid on the first day of December next, with interest at seven per cent. per annum semi-annually; such obligations to be secured by placing in the hands of three Trustees an amount of seven per cent. Income Bonds equal to the obligations so sold; the said Bonds to be canceled when the said obligations are retired. The holders of the said confidential debt, or evidence thereof, to be allowed, at any time to take therefor the Income Bonds so always issued, to an amount equal to that held by them respectively.

SEVENTH—That, in addition to the provision creating a sinking fund, by surrender of stock from the Stockholders, thirty thousand dollars per annum shall be set apart, out of the earnings of said Road, and applied to the purchase of the obligations or Bonds of the Company, for the sinking fund under this arrangement. This thirty thousand dollars per annum will be nearly saved to the Company, by the concessions required from the Cayuga and Susquehanna Railroad Company, and the Warren Railroad Company.

Any portion of the 2,500 lots not needed by the New-York and Erie Railroad Company can be sold at any time, and by the terms of the lease the proceeds must be applied to the extinguishment or to the creation of a Sinking Fund for the extinguishment of the debt incurred for the improvement of the Long Dock property. The value of this property must be very great whenever the New-York and Erie Company transfer their traffic to the new terminus. CHARLES MORAN, President.

NATHANIEL MAYER, Secretary.

The Company will give the subscribers a certificate for the amount paid in, bearing 7 per cent. interest, and secured by a pledge of it in the Trust Company of Mortgage Bonds of double the amount.

THE MEXICAN WAR.

From the National Intelligencer, Nov. 2.

A DARE. (2.)

In a recent political address, General PILLOW charged that Mr. Tyler, with my assistance, had, in Mexico, administered a bribe to President or General SANTA ANA, &c. By a card in the National Intelligencer I promptly replied that I was morally certain Mr. T. had not paid a cent, in the way of a bribe, to any body whatever in Mexico, and I solemnly added that I was morally totally ignorant of any bribe of any sort whatever, great or small, being paid to that high functionary, (SANTA ANA,) or to any other, directly or indirectly, for his benefit, by or on account of any American officer or agent, civil or military. My dashed Gen. Pillow calls (in a rejoinder) "evasive," "a mere quibble," and he affects to support his assertion by extracts from "the sworn statements of Generals QUITMAN and SMITHER," which, he says, he has "procured from the record of the War Department."

Entertaining for those Generals (Q. and S.) high satisfaction and respect, a was in haste—not that there was anything material in the extracts—to learn from the War Department the character of the (to me) unknown "record" quoted by Gen. PILLOW. I have but now received a copy of the document, and in consideration of its other aspects it shall, presently, receive a passing notice. Suffice it to say, in this connection, that neither of the statements produced by Gen. PILLOW, with as much gravity, contradicts me in the least on the only point in question, viz.: the $10,000 bribe; for neither of those Generals professes to know to whom the bribe was paid, nor did any other American officer ever mention the name or address of the receiver, until confidentially disclosed on the final settlement, at the War Office, of my secret disbursements. Gen. PILLOW, however, assumes that he has had confided to him a great secret, and next betrays it by way of letting the world know that he had the honor of being trusted! The Mexican newspapers, I learn, have recently been filled with notices of Gen. PILLOW's denunciation of Gen. SANTA ANA, mixed up with the inquiry, "Who is the more infamous? He who receives a bribe, or the functionary who, in violation of his own and his country's honor, discloses the name of the traitor?"

But this case, bad as it is, does not stand alone in our recent annals, (and, of course, nothing so base could have occurred in our earlier history;) for, Jan. 20, 1847, a pleasant Executive was made, by the plastic hand of Executive Secretary, to communicate to the Senate for publication—almost my conceivable purpose, but at the expense of national faith and honor, to give me annoyance—the entire account I had confidentially rendered to the War Department of my secret disbursements in the Mexican war! It is true that some of the items had been suppressed by me in the original account, but none were forged, and now stand on publicity in this manner: "Paid messenger of the ——Guard, $25;" "Paid an Englishman to report violations of the armistice $200;" "Paid a member of the municipality $162 50," &c., &c., &c. Already, in consequence of this publication, five highly respectable residents of Mexico—utterly guiltless of bribery, but liable to suspicion under those designations—have, through a distinguished channel, made application to me for exoneration.

General PILLOW speaks feelingly of "the great and patriotic statesman who was (in 1846) Chief Magistrate of the nation," his some-time law partner, who had made him a Major-General, the same who, early in the war, sent for me, and in the kindest and most beseeching manner solicited my personal sympathy as well as professional aid in conducting a peace, promising me his entire confidence and support; the same who, when I had reached Mexico, undervalued, first, to appoint a Lieutenant-General to supersede me; and, failing in that, next thought of placing me under the same party, appointed a Major-General, (and, of course, my junior; the same who, it turns out, appointed Gen. PILLOW a spy on the conduct of Mr. TYLER and myself; and the same "great and patriotic statesman" who, having failed in nearly every promise he had made me, finally, when the war had been ended, released from arrest three officers who had been engaged in a conspiracy against me, restored them, with honor, to duty, superseded me in the command of the army in Mexico, and ordered the three conspirators and myself equally before a court of inquiry! It so happened that only Gen. PILLOW's conduct was directly investigated by that court; but its same three members were confidentially instructed from Washington, on finding in the instance of the spy, to organize themselves into a new court of inquiry, to investigate secretly that part of my conduct relating to the council of war held July 17, 1847, at Puebla, for the purpose, as alleged, of purchasing a peace, and which council figures so largely in Gen. PILLOW's recent publications.

This Court had every characteristic of a secret inquisition; it met under confidential instructions; it was reorganized in my absence and without my knowledge! whereas, in Gen. PILLOW's case, (as already, the was not only present, but had the privilege of objecting to members, and I should have challenged the entire panel; and the Court proceeded to take evidence, beginning with that of Gen. PILLOW! also in my absence, whereas the law (61st article of war) expressly declares that the accused shall "be permitted to cross-examine and interrogate the witnesses," (fully, when called before the tribunal,) I made my protest, and had nothing more to do with it; and had supposed, until Gen. PILLOW recently published the statements of two honorable Generals, (QUITMAN and SMITHER,) that all the parties connected with this investigation had become ashamed of their conduct, and had made no report, as there was no publication of their proceedings. Nevertheless, the longest bomb no allegation against me supported.

The next article of war (the 62d of the same statute) declares, "that Courts of Inquiry may be perverted to dishonorable purposes, and may be considered as engines of destruction to military merit in the hands of weak and envious commanders, they are hereby prohibited, unless directed by the President of the United States, or demanded by the accused." Little did the law maker imagine that seven a President might prove almost one of that class of commanders!

A word more. Two members of that famous Court were brevetted—one a Major-General, without any connection with the Mexican war; and the other a Brigadier, professedly for some slight service in Florida; and both after their attempt to ruin Gen. PILLOW and myself, as the prosecutors in the case.

WINFIELD SCOTT.

NEW-YORK, Oct. 29, 1857.

P. S.—In my former card I abstained, except incidentally and unavoidably, from criminating Gen. PILLOW or defending myself, although overwhelming means for either purpose lay before me, and I assign my forbearance to be equally self-denying on the present occasion, leaving the distribution of blame or praise among all concerned in the Mexican war to the future historian. Nor do I consider it any violation of that self-imposed restriction to finish here of Gen. PILLOW's quotations (in his recent reply) not from the statement of Gen. QUITMAN. The extract made by him (P.) was intended to implicate me in the project of purchasing, under certain circumstances, a peace, to which he now says he was more or less repugnant from the first, and with that quotation he (P.) suddenly stops, being, no doubt, appalled with the following sentence in the same statement, in which General QUITMAN continues: "After some pause General PILLOW gave his opinion in favor of waiting the arrival of General PIERCE, and expressed, in detail, his concurrence with the views of the General-in-Chief on the propriety of raising and applying the money as proposed, pledging his influence as an officer and a citizen to sustain the measure!" After this exhibition it probably will not be thought important by anybody whether General QUITMAN has expressed any opinion at all, or a contrariety of opinions, on any given subject whatever. W. S.

NEW-JERSEY.

The Hoboken Homicide—Trial of Cutter.

The Court opened yesterday morning at 9½ o'clock, and the Judge, Jury, prisoner, counsel, and even the spectators, looked refreshed by the recess that had been afforded by an intervening Sunday. As the case draws nearer to a close, public interest appears to increase, and there was yesterday a larger audience in attendance than upon any day since the commencement of the trial.

As the day advanced the crowd increased, and in the afternoon every position for sitting or standing was occupied. A large proportion of the spectators were ladies, who have from the first evinced more than an ordinary degree of interest in the trial, which may, perhaps, be accounted for in the fact that there is a sprinkling of love in the case.

After the opening of the Court, and the usual preliminary business, Mr. ISAAC W. SCUDDER commenced summing up in behalf of the defence, and occupied the time until the recess, speaking about 3½ hours. He gave the evidence an elaborate review. He arrived mainly at the establishment of the theory that the explosion of the pistol was the result of its falling from CUNYA's belt to the sidewalk, and assumed that no other conclusion could be drawn from the form and character of the wound inflicted.

After the recess Mr. A. O. ZABRISKIE resumed his speech for the defense, and, at the time of adjournment, had spoken over three hours without getting through. He stated to the Court that he would probably occupy an hour or two full more.

Mr. ZABRISKIE is giving the evidence a very close scrutiny and comparison, and his arguments thus far, have been mainly directed to discrediting the testimony of Miss Susan Cariano, (the principal witness for the prosecution,) assuming that she was so overcome at the time by nervous excitement that her evidence is not reliable.

Hon. WM. L. DAYTON, Attorney-General, will make the concluding speech in behalf of the State, which will be followed by the Judge's charge, and the case will probably be given to the Jury this afternoon.

MONDAY, Nov. 2—6 P. M.

The Clearing Averages of the Banks in the City of New-York for the past week, ending Saturday, Oct. 31, the particulars of which are added by each bank separately on another page of this paper, present in the aggregate the following changes from the previous statement of Saturday, Oct. 24:

Increase of Loans	$[illegible]
Increase of Specie	2,471,[illegible]
Decrease of Circulation	[illegible]
Increase of Undrawn Deposits	3,[illegible]

Including the Clearing-House transactions of the week, which averaged only $9,610,508 [illegible] day against twenty-eight and a half millions the [illegible] last season, and the Sub-Treasury statement of Saturday afternoon, the following is the general comparison with last week, and also with the corresponding week in 1856.

COMPARATIVE RECAPITULATION.

	Nov. 1, 1856.	Oct. 31, 1857.	Oct. 24, 1857.
Capital	$54,348,008	$63,519,000	$63,5[illegible]
Loans	109,142,088	95,317,754	95,5[illegible]
Specie	11,007,879	12,862,441	10,4[illegible]
Circulation	6,980,638	6,894,748	6,[illegible]
Gross Deposits	66,522,892	61,463,664	57,[illegible]
Exchanged	28,495,776	9,610,508	9,[illegible]
Drawn	26,024,810	51,853,156	47,[illegible]
In Sub-Treasury	13,496,572	5,402,996	6,[illegible]

In addition to the Specie increase of $2,471,[illegible] which is even better than anticipated, the reserve of Country Bank Notes increased during the week about a million of dollars, making the whole increased strength of the City Banks, at the present moment, seventeen millions of dollars. The decrease in the line of Discounts has varied but little in the aggregate, though it will be discovered by comparing the tables for the two weeks, that a number of the leading banks have added very considerably to their discount column.

It is not improbable that the Notes Uncirculated of the Country Banks held in the Metropolitan Bank, for the City Association, will reach two millions of dollars, in the course of the present month, when it will be desirable to assume the money by the accommodation of such of the banks in the country as desire to call home their circulation in exchange for City funds now unemployed. We understand that a number of the banks in Albany and west of that City, are running short of their own notes, while their balances in the City are on the increase, and the exchange under such circumstances, would be a mutual accommodation. We also learn that there is still some misgiving in the country as to the probable course of the banks here on early resumption. We repeat what has already been said in this paper, and also by a number of our City cotemporaries equally well advised, that there is no reasonable ground for apprehending either hasty action or a very early day. The contrary feeling now obtains among all the bank officers of any prominence, with perhaps a single exception, and for the [illegible]

The Unsettled bank movement, and consequent embarrassment to the Cotton trade, at New-Orleans is likely to employ Gold from this City in two ways. Bills on Europe against the cotton shipments at this season of the year are delayed to an extent to advance the rates on London here, while bills on New-York, even at sight, are at such heavy discount at New-Orleans as to draw further considerable shipments of Gold. Exchange on London advanced to-day to 107@108 ⅌ cent. 60 days, and 109@109½ short sight. The amount wanted for the Boston steamer on Wednesday is not large, but the supply, from the cause just referred to, is quite scant. The steamer Granada for New-Orleans this afternoon took out $450,000 in Gold. The Brokers quote Gold to-day 100½@100¾ ⅌ cent. buyers, 100¾@101¼ ⅌ cent. sellers. The supply is still liberal, with another arrival from California impending. The Domestic Exchanges moved very slowly, but there is some improvement in a few of the Southwestern points. Philadelphia is ¾@¼ ⅌ cent. Boston 99@99½ ⅌ cent. Money is easy at bank on prime short paper, though this is hard to come at, on account of the recent severe shock to mercantile confidence.

There is a pause in the Stock market, mainly on account of the absence of further news from Europe now overdue at Quebec. There is a chance for the Halifax steamer's dispatches to Oct. 24 to-night or early to-morrow, and the Arago, from Southampton Oct. 21, is about due at this port. The sales to-day were to a moderate amount and fairly distributed. The fluctuations were not important. Erie Bonds were better; the shares not quite sustained at Saturday's advance. The last sale of New-York Central was at 94½ ⅌ cent; Reading, 29; Panama, 72; Illinois Central, 61; Missouri Sixes, 66¾; and New-York and Erie, 12½ ⅌ cent. The general market left off steady. After the formal adjournment of the brokers Mr. CHARLES MORAN, President of the Erie Company, was invited to the Stock Exchange, where he addressed the members in explanation of the condition and wants of the Road, pretty much to the same purport and effect as he had previously communicated with the stock and bondholders at Clinton Hall.

The Sub-Treasury to-day received half a million (in gold) from the office at St Louis, forwarded by express. The whole receipts to-day were $559,609; payments, $97,510; balance this afternoon, $5,265,495.

The following is the last weekly

The following important points in regard to Railway mortgages have recently been decided by Justice MCLEAN, of the United States Supreme Court, in Circuit Term at Cincinnati. The suit was instituted in the name of Mr. D. D. WILLIAMSON, of this City, as Trustee to the mortgage in question, against the New-York, Albany and Harlem Road. Mr. FREDERICK A. LANE, of New-York, of counsel for the Trustee, made a lengthy and conclusive argument before the Court in support of the integrity and good faith of the mortgage, and the decision of Justice MCLEAN is entirely vindicative of the equitable right of the mortgagees (or bondholders) to the whole property acquired, as well subsequently as before the execution of the mortgage, and to the franchise of the Road.

The points decided were as follows:

First—That the mortgages held the property acquired subsequent to their execution.

Second—That the franchises of taking tolls, operating the road, &c., passed by the mortgage, and may be sold on foreclosure.

Third—That the court have jurisdiction of the subject matter of the action, and that the power of sale contained in the mortgage does not prevent the trustee from coming into a Court of Equity and asking a decree of foreclosure and sale.

Fourth—That the suit is rightly brought in the name of the trustee alone, without joining the bondholders.

Fifth—That the appointment of a receiver is a matter of discretion with the court, and though there has been a default in the payment of interest, yet it appears that the company have done everything in their power to keep up the road, but from bad crops, &c., have not been able to meet their interest, and by permission of the trustee and some of the bondholders, have expended the income of the road in finishing the same. Though no receiver may be appointed for the present, yet an order may be entered requiring the company to make returns of their earnings to the court and the half of the net earnings, after keeping the road in thorough working order, may be applied to the payment of the interest and the other half to the floating debt, (labourers, &c.) But if, at any time, it shall appear that the company is disobeying this order, or is becoming insolvent, then a receiver may be appointed. In the meantime, the suit to go on.

Messrs. HAGGERTY & CO., Auctioneers, will sell on Wednesday a large stock of Broch é and other Shawls and Silk Dress Goods, the fresh importation of Mr. S. KOHNSTAMM, on a credit of four months.

Simeon DRAPER's regular semi-weekly sale of Bonds and Stocks will take place to-morrow, Tuesday, at 12½ o'clock, at the Merchants' Exchange. ALBERT H. NICOLAY will hold a special auction sale of Stocks and Bonds to-morrow, Tuesday, at 12½ o'clock, at the Merchants' Exchange. The sale of A. H. MULLER, on Wednesday, will include $50,000 of Ohio State 6s of 1860.

Money Circulation and Exchanges.

[For Tuesday.] NEW-YORK, Monday, Nov. 2, 1857.

Our last advices were of the 27th instant. Since then it may be noticed that the discouragement so general in our market for the last two or three weeks begins insensibly to give way to a little more hope in the future, without its being easy to specify the immediate causes on which this change is based. The mechanism of commerce, entirely at a stand, shows some symptoms of recovery. The negotiation of exchange on Europe, although very irregular and difficult, is, nevertheless, less so than lately; and the exchanges on the neighboring cities and the interior, the rates of which have but little improved, are less nominal and begin to facilitate, though very slowly, the payment from one place to another. The absence of new transactions, and the forced liquidation which must continue to take place in many branches of business, will tend naturally to an accumulation of unemployed capital. The first indications of a reduction in the rates for loans on call with undoubted securities, are already perceptible. The importation of about $1,500,000 in specie, and the arrival on the 29th ult. of the Persia, from Liverpool the 17th ult., whose news has been, under the circumstances, regarded as rather reassuring, have produced a [illegible]

The City and County must go together in any movement on the subject that may be attempted. And in such case the representatives of the country Banks will unquestionably be first consulted.

The consequent embarrassment to the Cotton trade, at New-Orleans is likely to employ Gold from this City in two ways. Bills on Europe against the cotton shipments at this season of the year are delayed to an extent to advance the rates on London here, while bills on New-York, even at sight, are at such heavy discount at New-Orleans as to draw further considerable shipments of Gold. Exchange on London advanced to-day to 107@108 ⅌ cent. 60 days, and 109@109½ short sight. The amount wanted for the Boston steamer on Wednesday is not large, but the supply, from the cause just referred to, is quite scant. The steamer Granada for New-Orleans this afternoon took out $450,000 in Gold. The Brokers quote Gold to-day 100½@100¾ ⅌ cent. buyers, 100¾@101¼ ⅌ cent. sellers. The supply is still liberal, with another arrival from California impending. The Domestic Exchanges moved very slowly, but there is some improvement in a few of the Southwestern points. Philadelphia is ¾@¼ ⅌ cent. Boston 99@99½ ⅌ cent. Money is easy at bank on prime short paper, though this is hard to come at, on account of the recent severe shock to mercantile confidence.

There is a pause in the Stock market, mainly on account of the absence of further news from Europe now overdue at Quebec. There is a chance for the Halifax steamer's dispatches to Oct. 24 to-night or early to-morrow, and the Arago, from Southampton Oct. 21, is about due at this port. The sales to-day were to a moderate amount and fairly distributed. The fluctuations were not important. Erie Bonds were better; the shares not quite sustained at Saturday's advance. The last sale of New-York Central was at 94½ ⅌ cent; Reading, 29; Panama, 72; Illinois Central, 61; Missouri Sixes, 66¾; and New-York and Erie, 12½ ⅌ cent. The general market left off steady. After the formal adjournment of the brokers Mr. CHARLES MORAN, President of the Erie Company, was invited to the Stock Exchange, where he addressed the members in explanation of the condition and wants of the Road, pretty much to the same purport and effect as he had previously communicated with the stock and bondholders at Clinton Hall.

The Sub-Treasury to-day received half a million (in gold) from the office at St Louis, forwarded by express. The whole receipts to-day were $559,609; payments, $97,510; balance this afternoon, $5,265,495.

The following important points in regard to Railway mortgages have recently been decided by Justice McLEAN, of the United States Supreme Court, in Circuit Term at Cincinnati. The suit was instituted in the name of Mr. D. D. WILLIAMSON, of this City, as Trustee to the mortgage in question, against the New-York, Albany and Harlem Road. Mr. FREDERICK A. LANE, of New-York, of counsel for the Trustee, made a lengthy and conclusive argument before the Court in support of the integrity and good faith of the mortgage, and the decision of Justice McLEAN is entirely vindicative of the equitable right of the mortgagees (or bondholders) to the whole property acquired, as well subsequently as before the execution of the mortgage, and to the franchise of the Road.

First—That the mortgages held the property acquired subsequent to their execution.

Second—That the franchises of taking tolls, operating the road, &c., passed by the mortgage, and may be sold on foreclosure.

Third—That the court have jurisdiction of the subject matter of the action, and that the power of sale contained in the mortgage does not prevent the trustee from coming into a Court of Equity and asking a decree of foreclosure and sale.

Fifth—That the appointment of a receiver is a matter of discretion with the court, and though there has been a default in the payment of interest, yet it appears that the company have done everything in their power to keep up the road, but from bad crops, &c., have not been able to meet their interest, and by permission of the trustee and some of the bondholders, have expended the income of the road in finishing the same. But if, at any time, it shall appear that the company is disobeying this order, or is becoming insolvent, then a receiver may be appointed. In the meantime, the suit to go on.
